Varjazi & Basileus

Errata

- Page 8 Druzhina Malai

Replace the “Fist of Steel” paragraph by the following:

Fist of Steel: The Malaia Druzhina benefit from the special rule “Determination” as described on page 61 of Crescent and the Cross.

During phase 4 of a Shooting, or step 5 of a melee, the Druzhina may re-roll one Defence die. When the last figurine from a unit of Malaia is removed from game, all other units of the same Warband immediately receive a fatigue in addition to any fatigue they would have normally suffered, for example, being within S of a unit that was wiped out in combat.

- Page 12: Harald Hardrada

Even though he may use the Byzantine and Viking Battleboards at the same time, you may never have more than 8 SAGA dice in play at any one time.

- Page 15: Steppe Nomads

Replace the “precision” paragraph by the following:

Precision: during phase 3 of a shooting action, the Steppe nomads Nay re-roll any natural 1s.

Clarification

The “Grey Wolves” ability, according to the Battleboard, is used during a melee, but in the book, it is activated during the orders phase.

It seems that even the Russian Monks can’t copy books correctly... “Grey Wolves”, is in fact, a melee ability.

If a Russian uses “Under Darkened Skies” against a unit in a building, what happens?

Exactly the same as a unit forced to disengage after a Hiberno-Nordic’s “Demonstration of Strength” ability. The unit in the building must disengage as far as it can in the opposite direction, up to a maximum of S, and be at least VS from the building.

May the Druzhina Malai be taken in the same Warband as a unit of Black Hoods?

Yes.
