

The Age of Hannibal

🎯 Clarifications

• REGULAR PAY RUSE (P.25)

In the text of the Ruse «Regular Pay», ignore the sentence specifying «If several units have this Ruse...». Like all ruses, Regular Pay may only be included once in your warband.

• CHARIOTS (P. 13)

The size of the chariot bases has been omitted. For the Carthaginian heavy chariots the base must entirely fit within a 120 diameter circle. For the Gallic chariots, the base should entirely fit within a 100mm circle.

• GUERRILLA SAGA ABILITY (P. 54)

Diodorus specifies that a limitation exists in order to be able to rest via the use of Guerrilla, but this note refers to a previous version and was left out by mistake. You can use Guerrilla to rest one of your units, even if it was activated during your turn.

• POLEMOS (P. 47)

Note that it is the modified dice result that is taken into account. So it is a result of exactly 1, after applying the modifiers.

• MERCENARIES (P.66)

Each mercenary unit may only be recruited once in a warband.

🎯 Erratas

• SARISSA (P.13)

Replace the entire Sarissa rule with:

🎯 Sarissas

Developed under Philip II of Macedon, the sarissa was a long pike between four and seven metres in length. Although it was difficult to handle and required perfect coordination, this weapon was formidable in the hands of trained soldiers. Its unique feature was a bronze point at both ends, allowing it to be firmly braced against the ground to break cavalry charges.

Only infantry figures can be equipped with sarissas. A unit equipped with sarissas reduces its movement distance to S, but its charge distance remains M. A sarissa provides the following two benefits as long as the unit carrying it isn't even partially in uneven or dangerous terrain:

- Once per turn, a unit equipped with sarissas can be activated for a free shooting attack that generates no fatigue with a range of S. Note that a sarissa doesn't count as a ranged weapon, and that except for this special activation a unit with sarissas can't be activated to shoot.
- While it has no fatigue, a unit equipped with sarissas gets a +1 bonus to its attack dice in melee against Elephants or figures with the Mount (X) special rule.

A unit equipped with sarissas can only close ranks if they are entirely in open terrain. If a figure from the unit finds itself even partially in uneven or dangerous terrain, the unit can't close ranks.

• CHARIOTS (P. 13) New

Replace the entire section with:

Gallic nobles often rode chariots to war, and the Romans still encountered them during the Gallic Wars. Chariots are a new troop type for the Gallic warbands and an equipment option for the Warlord of this faction.

Chariots are activated like Hearthguards, and made of between 2 and 6 models. For 1 point you can recruit 2 chariots. Alternatively, you can remove 4 Warriors or 6 Levies from your warband to add 1 chariot to an existing unit of chariots.

For victory conditions, each chariot counts as 2 Hearthguards.

A chariot must be on a base 40-80mm wide and 80-100mm long

Saga Dice	Armour	Aggression	Equipment
1	5 (4)	4/0	-
Règles spéciales
Présence, Resilience (1), Monture (cheval)*, Chariot

* The armour penalty is already included in the profile.

Chariot : chariots can never enter, move through or be deployed in uneven or dangerous terrain (they count these terrains as impassable).

Warlords in chariot : If you have at least one chariot unit, your warlord can choose a chariot as a mount. In that case, he gains the Mount (horse) special rule and the Chariot rule above. His base must be as defined above. He is considered as a unit of chariots and a Warlord for the sake of Saga abilities.
